

Dr. Sergey Ripinsky is legal affairs officer at the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) in Geneva. He specializes on legal and policy aspects of foreign investment, including international investment agreements and investor-State dispute settlement. He is a member of the team that produces UNCTAD's annual World Investment Report, regular papers on specific international investment issues, G-20 Reports, Investment Policy Monitors and other publications. Prior to joining UNCTAD, Sergey was research fellow at the British Institute of International and Comparative Law in London and before that at Maastricht University. He has authored a book on Damages in International Investment Law (London, 2008) and a number of articles on investment- and trade-related topics. Sergey holds a Ph.D. from St. Petersburg State University (Russia) and an LL.M. in International and European Law from Maastricht University (The Netherlands).